Right of Way

In high school, compulsive energy to many is thought of as a DETOUR to adulthood. Constant worries of FALLEN ROCKS and/or grades are a major concern and a death trap to some. Now and again we all have LOW SHOULDERS and need to be picked back up and dusted off.

STOP! What is different about that? What makes Castlewood High School so unique? The answer is everyone at C.H.S. is one of a kind. The faculty is like a parent to each individual. Teachers take time out of the average eight-hour workday to withstand an extra lesson or two for someone who is behind or just a little slow. To YIELD for a pupil takes a very whole-hearted educator. Most GIVE EM A BRAKE instead of saying, "I haven't got the time — this is my planning period!"

School is about us, though, the students. Not that being grown up is bad, but who wants to be married, working, or even worse level-headed? Just taking it SLOW without CROSSING a bridge before getting there is what being a teenager is all about. There are always CURVES AHEAD, but even so that is typical adolescence.

In closing the point standing is that everyone at C.H.S. is unmistakably a devil. Even the guy in third period that has never spoken a word has a little fire inside. We all need a bit of help at times. Age makes no difference — seventeen or seventy — we are all still UNDER CONSTRUCTION.

Learning Obviously Takes Ultimate Sacrifices

There are painters and there are artists. Some people cook but few are chefs. There are teachers and then there are educators. It is not often that a student can actually turn to a person of that stature, but there is always a chance. Luckily C.H.S. students have just that person.

This teacher has taken on an enormous task, that is only because she hasn't got the heart to tell someone who just needs to talk that she is busy. She is always Fair Because Living A lie is living in deceit and her pupils respect and admire her for these qualities. There are always times when things get people down. This strong and zealous lady does not let menial affairs turn her smile upside down because she knows that Students Care About her.

Most Students Do Other Studies in classes which are obviously a free credit or overwhelmingly boring. Computer Obedience May Purely Undertake The Evident Rebeler. In such cases, there is one place students normally enjoy learning and creating their own optical illusions. You cannot find this curiosity and eagerness in all classes. But this livelihood is usually found in classes taught by Mrs. Pat Huff.

You have taught us much about understanding ourselves, Mrs. Huff. Thank you for being more than a teacher. Thanks for being our friend.

Callie Harrill

No, I don't believe in hypnosis...Mrs. Huff demonstrates her disbelief in out-of-body experiences.

No, McKinsey you cannot order "jiffies" for the entire class...Mrs. Huff's not only a role model at school but after hours also.

That's okay I don't need any help-NOT...Pat Huff illustrates her love of work, or is it the great salary?

All work and no play...Pat Huff and pal Mary Bush always find time to make things a little brighter.

Does this compute?...Mrs. Patricia Ann Huff is, by far, one of a kind.

Busy, Busy, Busy...Mrs. Huff conveys that a woman's work is never done.

The Student Life section gives a look at the livelier side of school. It doesn't have to be all work and no play. School can be more than just studying and tests. The extra-curricular activities and social functions can make the days a little more bearable and not so dreaded. There is excitement, chills, romance, suspense, achievement, and most importantly, a look at some of the friendship and togetherness shared here at C.H.S. It seems everyone gives their own special touch to Student Life to make it so unique. So just turn the page for a look at some of the inside scoop.

Back in the Blue of Things!

The 1991 Homecoming Week started with Cartoon Day, and all through the halls there were clowns and all kinds of characters showing support for the Blue Devil football team. Next in line was Ward Day and out-of-style clothes and hairstyles were seen everywhere. Denim Day brought out blouses from the past from the twenties to the eighties. Clothes and/or hat day was after that and to show support for their favorite College team. Blue and White Day was last and the students had blue faces and some even had blue hair.

The time for the game finally arrived and for the first time in three years, it was clear and showed no signs of rain. It opened with dancers entertaining the fans. All week the classes had been decorating golf carts to serve as floats, and the senior class won this contest. That win was the fifth consecutive one for the class of '94. During halftime the attendants were Kristy Lencard, eighth grade; Vicki White, ninth grade; Summer Ramsey, tenth grade; and Crystal Profitt, eleventh grade. The three senior attendants were Marissa Booker, Callie Harrell, and Andrea Meade. An ecstatic Andrea Meade was chosen as the 1991 Homecoming Queen. After halftime the football team came running back onto the field and beat the Berinwood Panthers 47-0. Following the game, the students enjoyed themselves at the dance sponsored by the Journalism class. And so ended the Homecoming festivities for yet another year.

Marissa Booker

A night of glory... Andrea Meade shines with happiness after being crowned the 1991 Homecoming Queen.

Going for victory... The Blue Devils show the Panthers who rules on their home turf.

Coming through... Danny Bell and Shannon Willis will everyone to make room for the junior float.

Peace, man ... David Grey looks like he just returned from the Woodstock Festival.

Who are those masked men? ... It's just Chris James, Kevin Johnson, and David Bartee displaying their spirit on Blue and White Day.

Look at me! ... Michelle Bush expresses her clown side during Homecoming Week.

We've got the look ... Christine Phillips and Andrea Meade show their true fashion sense on Nerd Day.

What a brute ... Anthony "Heifer" Woods endures the pain that comes along with being a sleigh for Shannan Chapman.

Caution!!! Spooks on Board!

On Halloween day all the spooks showed up here at G.H.S. While twenty contestants were backstage "constructing" their costumes, the auditorium was filled with fear from the screaming music operated by a little Indian girl (Bethanie Brasten). When all the seats were occupied, Clint Black (Scott Jussee) came onto the stage with his guitar and cowboy hat to introduce the contestants.

In every category there was a $25.00 prize for each winner. The "One Night Stand" (Mary Jess Pratt) was victorious in the Original division. In best group, Bam Bam and G.I. Joe (Nikki White and Tanya Hurd) walked away with the splitting of bucks. The Retired School Teacher (Herman Hodges) won his own Faculty Look Alike. Last but not least, Raggedy Ann and her pumpkin (Tonya Long and Denise Chaffin) shyly smiled while receiving cash for Best Character.

Not only did the winners strut their "works", but others involved did a wonderful job also. Wild Man, the Jolly Green Giant (Dave Wells) made his big appearance with his Jungle Jive motion. Daisy the Cow (Sandra Marshall) whipped the aggravating flies off with her black tail. Everyone enjoyed their morning of getting out of class to sit back and watch their fellow classmates have a little fun.

The Halloween Costume Contest was a great success for the SCA. If it weren't for the "bosses" — Mrs. Harding and Mrs. Huff, this festivity would never have been "constructed" quite so well. Hopefully, the students didn't get so scared that their nerves "fell apart."

Christina Phillips

Could it be Mr. Bannister and Mrs. Hall? ... It's Nikki Austin and Misty Norton waiting backstage for the judges' results.

Line 'em up ... This rowdy bunch consists of the overall winners of the Halloween contest.

What a trio ... Scott Jussee, Misty Gibson, and Kim Mullins show off their Halloween costumes.

Next Exit . . . North Pole

Look at my dolly . . . Lou Holbrook shows off her baby doll.

White Christmas is a joyous event for all students at Castlewood High School. It's an event of giving and sharing. This year the students had their own way of giving during the holiday season. Members of the SCA, FBLA, and FHA sponsored several children with Christmas gifts. The members of these clubs took up money each day for gifts for the children. When the day arrived for the young children to receive their gifts, there was joy and laughter in the air. The fun really began when Santa Claus (Chris James) arrived to make his debut.

This year's hosting of White Christmas was celebrated in a different way. Years before, each homeroom would sponsor a child, but various clubs accepted the honor of sponsoring the White Christmas children this year. Even though it was performed quite differently this year, it was a great success, and everyone will be looking forward to having White Christmas again next year here at C.H.S.

Mary Vajda

All I want for Christmas is . . . Santa (Chris James) begins to tell Eric Thomas what he wants for Christmas.

Look, Mommy . . . Betty Jane Holbrook is surely satisfied with her gift.

I love my Turtles . . . Allen Holbrook is all smiles with his Christmas gift of Ninja turtles.

Love Is In The Air

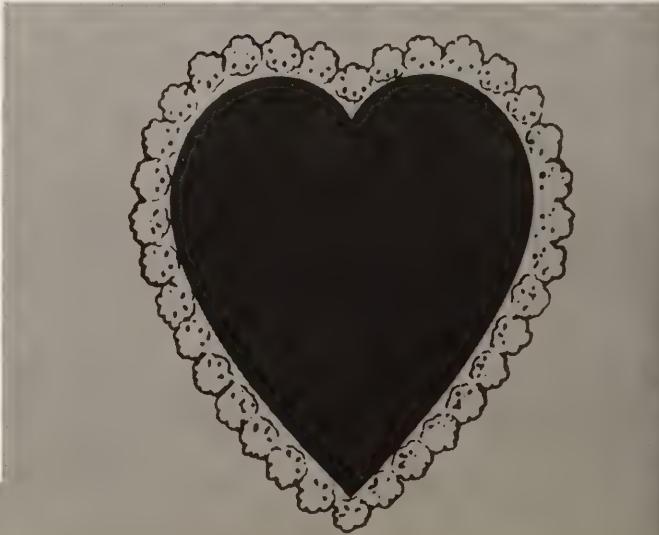

Hearts, roses, balloons, candy, and stuffed animals are many of the things that come to mind when you think of Valentine's Day. Probably more than anything, though, we think of couples. You see them every day walking the halls together, holding hands, and sharing those decorative glances. This one day of the year comes for some reason seems more romantic if you are part of a two-some.

Love isn't in the air just on Valentine's Day but every day. You may not have a special person in your life now but sooner or later you will, and you'll know how wonderful it is and how much dedication it takes. Not only is Valentine's Day full of romance and love, it is also full of friendship. No matter who shares this day with you, it will remain a treasured memory.

Kim Mullins

Stand by your man (or woman). Alana Kennedy and Eric Shaffir stand side by side and heart to heart.

Two of hearts. Amber Arney and Harry Johnson let everyone know how wonderful it is to be in love.

Royalty for a day... Niki White and Travis Dishman smile for the cameras after being crowned King and Queen of Hearts.

The answer is... Dave Burdo, Steve Franklin, Tracy Bell wait patiently to give one of their wise crack answers.

And The Winner Is...

On February 14, Niki White and Travis Dishman were crowned King and Queen of Hearts. To achieve this honor each homeroom class elected representatives. Each one of these students raised money and in the end these two students reached the level of royalty.

Not only did we have a King and Queen but we also had a couple of winners in the Heart-to-Heart game, both of which were sponsored by the SCA. The object of this game was to give all the lonely souls here at G.H.S. who never have a date a chance to find their dream date right here at school... NOT. After the couples were matched they had to put together a puzzle in the shape of a heart. After much difficulty the couple most talented was Sandra Marshall and David Wells. So congratulations to all the lucky winners.

Kim Mullins

Look, we won... Sandra Marshall and Dave Wells show off their prizes after winning the Heart-to-Heart game.

Larry, Curly, and Mo... Coach Allen, Coach Sano, and Coach Taylor take part in the Heart to Heart game and even act a little like the Three Stooges.

Building up to Victory

Basketball Homecoming was held on January 31. The Blue Devil team was psyched up to take on the Holston Cavaliers.

During the halftime festivities, the attendants were announced and paraded on the court. The attendants were as follows: Eighth grade attendant Mary Ann Hicks; Freshmen attendant Nicole Mutter; Sophomore attendant Billie Meade; and Junior attendant Paige Glover. Senior attendants were Lori Stone, Marissa Booker, and Callie Harrill. When the big moment came, the 1992 homecoming queen was announced - Callie Harrill! January 31 was certainly a night for everyone to remember.

Susan Hicks

I can't believe it... Callie Harrill is glowing with excitement after being crowned the 1992 Basketball Homecoming Queen.

The future looks bright... The J.V. boys listen closely to Coach Sobe wanting to learn everything they can.

Oh Say — not Oh Son... Billy Woods, Dave Barter, and Kevin Johnson sing The Star Spangled Banner at the Homecoming game.

The Queen and her court. Attendants include Freshman Nicole Muser escorted by Daniel Jessie; Sophomore Billie Meads escorted by Jason Alderson; Senior Marissa Booker escorted by Alex Jennings; Homecoming Queen Galia Harrill escorted by Shawn Kiser; Senior Lori Stone escorted by Bradley Crabtree; Junior Paige Gluett escorted by Chris Alexander; and Eighth grader Mary Hicks escorted by David Owens.

What a shot. Aundra Mullins, Christine Phillips and her beau, and all of the C.H.S. B-ball fans watch the Devils attentively.

Shooting for two... Tracy Hall shoots the ball hoping to score two for his team as his teammates rush to help rebound.

Why does a blond wear shoulder pad?
So she won't bruise her ears.

What is a blond behind

Airbar.

What do you call a brunette between two blonds? An interpreter.

Do blonds have all the fun? This seems to be what everyone wants to know. Well, why not ask a blond, or have they figured it out yet??? This seems to be the impression that a blond leaves with people, though most people do not give a blond the chance to make a second impression.

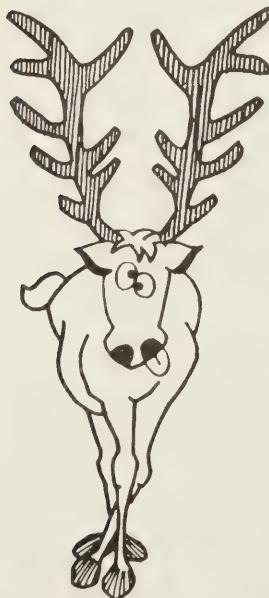

Blond jokes have circulated throughout the school during the past year. These humorous jokes lead people to believe that a blond person is a bubblehead. Although some blonds are airheads, this does not mean a redhead or a brunette is loaded with logic. Has anyone ever really sat down and thought about what a great excuse a blond has when they screw things up? "Duh I'm a blond." Well, this excuse works.

For a person who has never had the vast privilege of being in the world of blonds, he or she should hang around a blond for about an hour or two. This experience could change a person's outlook on life. So if you see a dizzy blond standing around you should give her a "refill" because after all blonds do have all the fun!

Some Enchanted Evening

The feeling on April 26, as the Juniors and Seniors prepared the prom was one of excitement and suspense. Even for those who chose to come alone it was a place of romance, wonder, and magic. The decorations were beautiful thanks to the dedication spent by the Junior class prom committee and sponsors. With the beautiful castle and gateways, the gym was transformed into a place of wonder. The theme was "Set the Night to Music," and the colors were blue, white, silver, and lavender.

Later in the evening the court was crowned. The Prince and Princess were Chris Alexander and Kelly Blackson. The Seniors chose Anthony Woods and Christine Phillips as King and Queen.

Even after the candles were blown out, the music stopped playing, the last couples left, and the doors were locked behind them, the night won't ever really end. To the Juniors and especially the Seniors, it will be a night that will always be a wonderful memory held close to their hearts.

Simply Irresistible

On the night of May 2, Castlewood's finest young ladies were all Miss America if for just an evening. As each Miss CHS contestant took her walk across the stage, it was obvious that each young lady possessed not only beauty but charm and self-confidence as well. They also showed off their talent during a dance performed for the audience.

Callie Harrill stole the show as she was named Miss Castlewood 1992. Following her were Michelle James, 1st runner-up; Crystal Proffitt, 2nd runner-up; Lena Taylor, 3rd runner-up; Nikki Austin, 4th runner-up. Kristy Leonard was named Most Photogenic and Niki White captured Miss Congeniality. Misty Gibson was crowned Junior Miss Castlewood. Her court included Amber Arney, 1st runner-up; Robin Phillips, 2nd runner-up; Kristy Leonard, 3rd runner-up; and Tonya Long, 4th runner-up.

Checking Out

"Did your mother sign this? Are you coming back?" These are some questions that one must answer before Mr. Banner or Mr. Hensdill will give their John Hancock to free them from school. Neither principal can be sure if they're letting the right ones go. There have been some to fake a note since given the privilege of checking out, and some have also gotten caught. The others, however, probably enjoyed their day away.

Checking out has become a very popular activity here at C.H.S. The lower classmen have always looked up to the Juniors and Seniors because of their ability to check out and get away from it all. Since the Juniors and Seniors have their license, they have the freedom to drive themselves to their destiny instead of having a parent come get them.

Each student has a plan for every day and most of them make special plans to check out of school and enjoy the world. Many check out for lunch and a lot check out during their study hall. Whatever the case may be, every student walks out the door happy and free.

Checking out will always be an all time favorite for all the students here at C.H.S. When your turn comes, and you have the glory of checking out, just remember to buckle up and enjoy your day away from the study of school. Please Excuse!!

Chicken Fillet. Chicken McNuggets. Hamburger. Chick Fillet. Chicken McNuggets. Pizza. Chicken Fillet. Chicken McNuggets.

Sound familiar? If you have ever glanced at a school menu or taken a quick trip to the cafeteria, it should. The taste isn't too bad, and the price is reasonable, but how about serving something different... or real?

The "ham"burgers (soy beans) are decent but leave you asking "Where's the Beef?" The Chicken McNuggets and Chicken Fillets taste about as good as the box they come out of. God only knows what they are made of, but I am willing to bet it isn't real chicken. The pizza is actually pretty good as long as a stack of napkins comes with it to soak up the floating grease.

Not wanting to be a complainer, my compliments to the chef for the mashed potatoes, rolls, and gravy. Why not serve something homemade (or even something that just looks homemade) or different? In the meantime, don't be surprised if you see students clucking, flapping their "wings", and pecking the ground.

Watch For Rising Stars

The Speech and Drama class was very successful in the 1991-92 school year. During the first semester, the students were very busy trying to learn how to organize and deliver successful speeches. They also were held responsible for the learning of the phonetic alphabetic, impromptu speeches, and extemporaneous speeches.

They did not only give the young actors and actresses a quick look at drama, but also a lesson in public speaking. None of this knowledge would have been consumed, however, if it weren't for the ever-patient Mrs. Sherry Kiser. Mrs. Kiser has not only taught this young group of students well, but also has become a friend to them all.

The students of C.H.S. are each individually different as a whole body or a class. The eighth grade has already taken that giant leap into the halls of C.H.S. that seemed so scary at first. They slowly become adjusted to high school by clinging to one another. The Freshmen class are at the age of where they are searching for their identity. Some separate from their eighth grade friends and some meet new ones. Some will try anything new, and are vulnerable to peer pressure at this time in their life.

The sophomores are anxious to get through Drivers Ed so they can get their license and take control of the roads. They know everything, and they are always right, no matter what the subject may be. The Juniors are proud, conceited, and more responsible. They begin thinking more seriously about their future plans. The Seniors are looking forward to the day when they receive their diploma.

Ooh! Slippery, scaly, and sneaky...Jaime Young, Waylon Jones, and Toby Taylor pet a harmless snake of which the counselor is speaking.

The first day of high school was probably exciting to some, but many were nervous and even a little frightened. Since they were the youngest at CHS, they had to endure the teasing and humiliation they got from the upper classmen. It is a tradition at C.H.S. that eighth graders be put through all kinds of embarrassing things to be considered a part of high school. Throughout the year, the eighth graders had many obstacles to overcome. Getting to know people, passing all their classes, and learning the ways of C.H.S. are just a few of the many things to which eighth graders must adjust. They did all of this and much more, and at the end of the year, they finally received the title of "freshman" and went into the next year with their first step in the "workshop" complete. Eighth grade is a difficult time for many, but the class of '96 made a place in the halls and classrooms of CHS that no other class could "construct."

Freshmen, finally! Many ninth graders are relieved to have officially overcome the "lowlife" status of eighth graders. They are anxious to begin what they feel is the start of their high school career. As eighth graders they felt as if they lacked a proper place, and their absence of a name made them seem unimportant. It is essential for these students to realize that as freshmen they are entering a very trying time in their lives. They are at what might be called the "crossroads of high school." In a very short time, they will be making decisions on driving, dating, and many other teen situations. With the proper guidance and leadership, it is hopeful that they will properly analyze these situations and make wise decisions. Should a mistake or wrong decision be made, there is always someone there to guide them along. Even though they may not realize it now, some of the most sensible advice can come from teachers. Seek their advice because any situation a student might encounter has most likely been dealt with before.

When a new year approaches, the sophomores of C.H.S. are looking over the tower that they have halfway built. Being placed in the middle has its high points because during the sophomore year students become drivers. Some are scared that they may wreck but most are happy they can go without Mom and Dad. Driving isn't all the sophomores do; they also learn what different road signs mean. Driving has always been a fun experience but it has also become a costly one as well. Before a student can begin steering the wheel, they must have 45 big ones first. After paying this fee, they are ready to throw the car into drive. These sophomores are free to roam but they should take "Caution" and "Watch for Falling Rocks." Drive Safely.

Caution: Success Ahead

The requirements for the job of a junior are quite simple, especially for this group. All it takes is determination and self-motivation, and this class isn't lacking any of these requirements. From deciding what college to attend to preparing for SAT's, these teens are always working their hardest. These things are helpful in preparing them for life after high school. Each student has set their own goals and are striving to reach them. Eight very deserving juniors were inducted into the Beta Club this year. Congratulations!

School isn't all work and no play. Many of the students who came back in August had a new way of getting to school — their own car or truck. They had later curfews and were allowed to have a little more fun now that they were juniors. Being a junior means receiving your class ring, and when October came, so did their rings. Only a couple of people had problems and had to send them back, but the students whose rings were all right were heard telling people to turn their rings. November brought the sale of items to raise money for the Junior-Senior Prom. This sale was a success.

To sum up this class in one word - "extraordinary." Even though they have one year to go and are still "Under Construction," they are ready and waiting to face any obstacles.

As our days go by we come closer
To the time that we must part
Never again to return to these days
Which are so precious in our hearts.

The times we shared were filled with laughter,
Joy, love, and an occasional tear.
These were the feelings we had in our hearts
As we roamed the halls that are so dear.

Through the years we gained new friendships,
Made new loves, but soon we shall see
Each float away softly and carelessly
As our changed lives soon will be.

We will go through our lives with these memories
Till our paths shall cross again,
Another tear shall roll as we reminisce
The good ol' days we had back then.

WHERE WILL WE BE IN YEARS FROM NOW? Mary and Amy Fields discuss the places they may go.

LET THE GOOD TIMES ROLL... Tracy Hall, Alex Jennings, Erica Clay, Rebecca Dickenson, Robin Ring, Justin Phillips, and Andrea Meade show their friendship will always live on.

WE'RE OUTTA HERE... Marsha McReynolds and Heather Jordan wave to good ol' C.H.S.

There comes a time in everyone's life when they must simply close one chapter of life and look on to the next. This holds especially true for the graduating Seniors. Although, they are approaching the end of their "Glory Days" at C.H.S., they are beginning to travel the highway of freedom.

All students start on a small, dusty dirt road in Kindergarten and work until they reach the expressway in their Senior year. At this point they must make the most important decision of their lives — whether or not to get off on 101 College Drive or to try their luck in the business district. Both of these choices begin the journey down a long and rocky road to success.

There are just a few miles left before the lane merges for the class of '92. From here on out they need to roll down the windows and let the wind blow through their hair. Everyone needs to enjoy themselves while they can because soon they will find themselves having to yield, merge, and change lanes in the steady flow of traffic that leads to tomorrow. CARPE DIEM!

Kevin Johnson

No U Turn

Is it so prudent, as we travel down this dusty road, to think of all misfortunes rather than finer points? To think of the dead ends and curves we have encountered as a learning experience is a means of handling it best, but only for future reference, not as a bookmark in our lives. Emily Dickinson explained it best: "Much madness is divinest sense."

Life is still full of laughter and tears even after graduation. Some believe the minute we exit the doors we must begin a "real" life — form a career, construct a family, mature and grow older. On the other hand, does it really change? Will we be completely different people?

Contrary to popular belief, everyone will still have first kisses and new loves. We know there will always be hardships, but with diploma in hand and determination in mind, there are no obstacles too large to conquer. C.H.S. has taught its pupils confidence, self-discipline, and pride. These are three qualities that will board with us on every journey for the rest of our lives.

As we diversify to our new and exciting paths, we keep in our memory the support we have gained through high school. The thought of the good times and even the unpleasant ones will rekindle a spark of feeling — the way an old photograph does. This is OUR TIME — we are the youth of the 90s. Look out, world, here we come!

Most Likely To Succeed...Willie Monk and Leslie Watson can never agree on which college fits them.

Of the '79 Seniors of the C.H.S. Senior class, only a chosen few were selected as Senior Superlatives. Through drive and determination this group will reign as one of a kind. Whether it be personality, academic, or athletic ability, these students have worked to maintain their standing among their peers. Although not everyone is chosen as a superlative, everyone knows the dedication these 16 students have toward the Class of '92. From "Most Likely to Succeed" to "Best All Around", this small group is respected in many ways. The image created by these students will serve as a reminder to future graduates of the importance of being a superlative.

Mr. SENIOR

Lipstick, hairspray, and pantyhose filled the C.H.S. bandroom on November 20. Thirteen lovely "ladies" waited with high expectations to walk out on center stage to strut their stuff. This outgoing bunch of senior boys have anxiously awaited the day that they could participate in the special tradition of "Mr. Senior 1992".

Although the winners of this contest were difficult to determine, the judges finally made their decision. The winners were: 4th runner-up Steven "Stevette" Arney; 3rd runner-up Anthony "Abigail Van Heifer" Woods; 2nd runner-up Matt "Luscious Lolita" Sykes; and 1st runner-up Jim "Jasmine Gaye" Grizzle. The new Mr. Senior of 1992 was Tracy "Tantalizing Trixie" Phillips. These very unique young men definitely deserve a round of applause. They showed great courage and good sportsmanship. As for the underclassmen, your turn is just right around the corner. Don't let this tradition die.

Private Drive to a Quality Education

When high school students reach their senior year, they realize how close their future is. They will separate and go into the world to fend for themselves and hope that they chose the right path. The most popular college choices are Radford, Clinch Valley College, Virginia Highlands, and Carson-Newman. College is a way to soften the effect of being thrown out into the world so all you Seniors, go for it and have fun.

Softball and Banana Splits

Senior Day is a day invented just for the Senior class. The Seniors started the day with an early morning graduation practice. After that, they made their way down to the Senior League Field for food, fun, and friends. Although the day was rainy, the Seniors made the best of it with a game of softball and indulgence in banana splits. This time was just a little breather before their final farewell.

Carpe Diem!

As the Seniors rounded the corner, to begin the ceremonies for Baccalaureate on May 24, 1992, they received their first glimpse of reality. They realized at this moment that their days together were almost at an end.

After taking that long journey down the aisle of the CHS auditorium, the ceremonies began.

The invocation was given by Rev. David Wolfe. Then Rev. Charles Dixon delivered the message. His message opened several eyes of the Senior class. He reminded the group of their childhood, when they slept in the back seat of their parents' car and had security. Now that security is not so much with them.

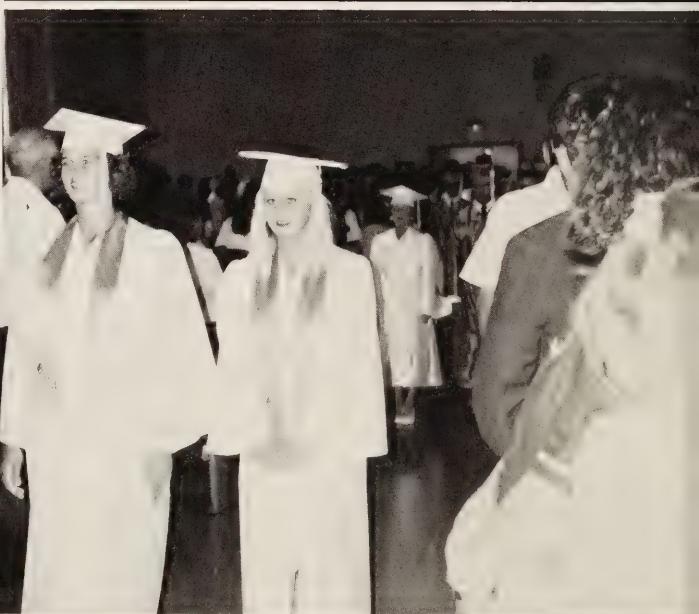

He also reminded the Seniors that the only person that could hold them back is the one inside their mind. The 1992 Seniors left with their heads held high and one true thought in their mind — Carpe Diem!

Advice to ponder ... Rev. Charles Dixon gives a message that the 1992 Seniors will never forget.

It's So Hard To Say

May 28, 1992 was the birth of many new futures, but also the end of a great era. This marked the date that the Senior class would begin their new lives. As the nervous group lined up to begin the ceremonies, the tears also followed. This special group always knew they would look back at the bad times and laugh, but they never knew they would look at the good times and cry.

Once the evening began and the Senior class of 1992 took their final walk down the CHS auditorium, the group's spirits soared. After being seated, the group was given some words of wisdom by the 1992 co-valedictorians and salutatorian, Marsha McReynolds, salutatorian, encouraged her classmates to pursue their dreams.

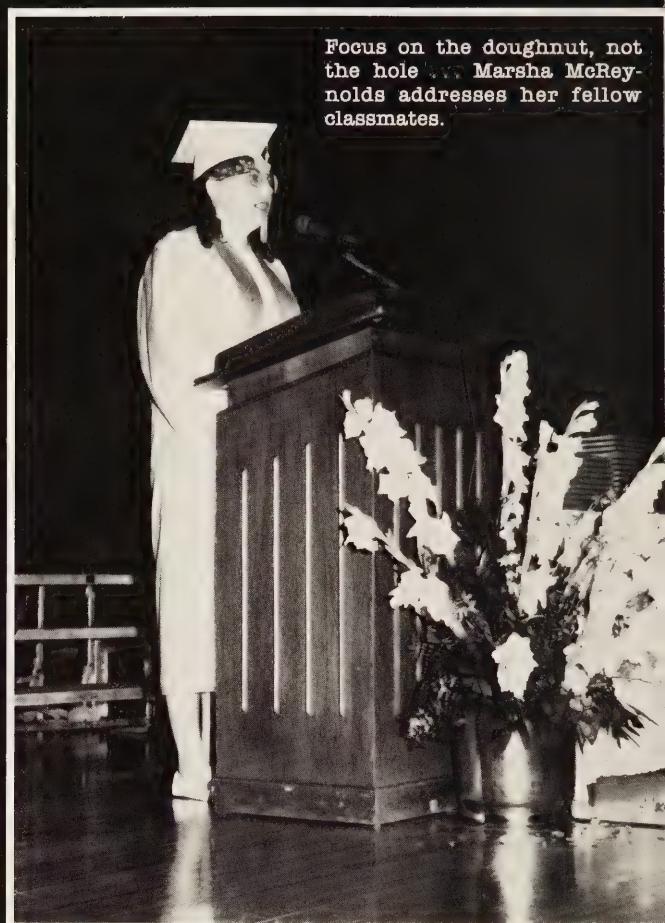

A little to the left, Aundie Mullins puts the finishing touches on Heather Skeens.

William Monk, valedictorian, reminded the class of their yesterdays. The other valedictorian, Leslie Watson, charged her classmates to seize the day. Soon after their speeches, the diplomas were handed out by Dr. Lorraine Turner. Mr. Steve Banner then pronounced the class of 1992 graduated, after an unforgettable benediction.

When leaving the auditorium for the last time, the class gathered outside to greet one another. The tears fell freely as the hugs were given. The Senior class of 1992 learned just how hard it is to say good-bye to yesterday.

Zone of Insanity

We're finally free ... Alex Jennings, Marsha McReynolds, and Heather Jordan finally escape the realm of CHS.

Lack of attention, skipping school, and lewd insanity are all common symptoms one may experience with a case of senioritis. Yes, the dreaded senior epidemic has hit the class of '92 especially hard, causing some to go completely mad. Is there any cure? Many feel it comes along with the role of being a Senior. While some escape its reach, others fall right into the trap as the countdown continues. So when evidence of madness appears, look out, it's difficult to know who will be the next victim.

Alex Jennings

Ugh, I'm going crazy ... Mark Phillips exhibits just what the pressures of being a Senior can do to a person.

Please free us ... Steve Arney and Steve Franklin wait hopelessly for someone to help them.

Only 10 days left ... Sandra Marshall wonders if she will make it through these last few days.

Which way do we go? ... Marissa Booker and Nikki Austin wonder how to escape CHS.

COLLECT YOUR REWARD!

I had an idea for a new invention laughed at by everyone. The new invention, a time machine, would enable people to travel far into the future. So finally test day came, and who better to be the monkey but the inventor himself. But wait! As I flipped the switch, a malfunction occurred sending me to the past. I noticed one of the key parts of the machine was broken. As I exited the machine, I first noticed a crowd of men standing around an entrance. The men were Kevin Johnson, Billy Woods, and Shane White, the town drunks. I learned this information through the town busybodies, Sandra Marshall and Marsha McReynolds. I entered the bar and saw numerous showgirls, headed by Nikki Austin. They included Wendi White, Andrea Meade, and Robin Ring. The bartender, Jeff Street, served me up a Phillips float, named after the town's two founders, Tyanna and Chris Phillips. In awe of the beauty of the ladies, I got carried away and grabbed one by the leg. I exited the bar with the aid of the two brutal bouncers, Anthony Woods and Justin Phillips.

While walking down Fields Avenue, named in honor of the town's first female mayor Amy Fields, I noticed posters on the buildings. It was election time and the three mayoral candidates, Heather Jordan, Jamie Smith, and Jill Whitaker, were battling for the town's top position. I realized I was hungry and noticed The Best Friends Bar and Grill. As I entered and sat down, the waitress Becky Sands gave me a menu and there were Jamie Cline and John Hurd busing tables. I ordered my food and unfortunately it was terrible so I yelled to the waitress. Rebecca Dickenson and Heather Skeens, the owners, and the cook Bobbi Rose came to see about the problem. I showed them the broken tooth from their bread, and they apologized as they pointed the way to the local dentist.

On my way I passed the neighborhood school, which had only two teachers. I overheard Leslie Watson yelling frantically at Eric Thomas to speak up so the class could hear him. I found the dentist's office and was questioned by the receptionist Susan Hicks. The assistant Joettia Hughes showed me the way to a chair and seated me. Matt Sykes began fixing my chipped tooth. Due to my travels, I did not have the proper currency to pay the bill. The receptionist insisted on calling the sheriff, Steve Franklin, who came with his two deputies, Steve Arney and Tracy Hall. They took me to the jail where they told me I would get a trial with the new judge, Mary Ann Amburgey. She was late because of making funeral arrangements with the town mortician Lori Stone. I noticed a few men, Mark Phillips, Johnny Long, Gary Maxfield and Stacy Martin, outside the courtroom whittling their time away. The trial ended in my favor and I was off to find a place to stay for the night. I noticed the Village Motel owned by Lisa Phillips and Angie Burkett. I went to the front desk where Christine Phillips gave me a room on the top floor. I heard some screams and as I stepped out of my room, I saw Doc Randy Osborne exiting the next room. He had just delivered the third child of the cleaning lady, Patricia Sexton. I needed a haircut and found the barber, Tracy Phillips, who cut my hair so short I refused to pay him. Next to me sat Christy Maples having her hair done by Connie Jacobs.

After a long day, I stopped by Dave Bartee's bait and tackle shop to find a suitable rod and reel. There were Stacy Culbertson and Carey Morgan shopping for the same. While in the store, I overheard some talk that the Banner's Corner Bandits were coming to town for a heist. This group of outlaws was led by Ruth Guinn and included such names as Kenny Salyers, Jay Heranney, Mike Ring, and Eddie Meade. I quickly ran over to the bank for some real wild west action. Inside I saw the tellers Laura Wolfe, Aundra Mullins, and Tabitha Osborne taking every security precaution possible.

I began missing the world to which I was accustomed so I stopped by the post office and the postmaster Scott Jesse pointed the way to the blacksmith shop. There I saw Amy Taylor having her horse shod by Jim Girizzle. I asked Jim to make me a replacement part for my time machine. He agreed and I had to explain how the machine worked to the storekeepers Erica Clay and Callie Harrill. They gave me a going away present — a copy of Marissa Booker's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel My Wise Life.

I put in the new part and hoped it would fix the malfunction. I flipped the switch, it worked, and I finally came to a halt. I had arrived back where I had departed from. After I thought it over, the wild west was interesting, but it could not compare to the modern world in 1992.

Yield to New Ideas

From math to English to chemistry to journalism, the faculty at CHS all have different perspectives on how to educate, whether it is sitting at a desk lecturing calmly or dramatically making a point while beating on the podium. Their methods have proven successful, however strange or normal they may be.

Not only are they teachers, they are friends as well. Anytime during the day, they can be seen helping the students with their day-to-day problems. Teachers may seem strict sometimes, but one day the students will realize how much they have been influenced in their lives. Remember — teachers are the creators of tomorrow's leaders.

Planning Ahead

Virginia state law requires that every school teacher in the state receive one unencumbered period of free time per day to grade papers, relax, or simply get away from students. Being a teacher goes farther than just class time; it is sometimes extended to their home and personal lives. Because of all the additional work that comes with teaching, none can deny that their planning period is the most coveted period during the day.

As students, we are inclined to take for granted the dedication of a teacher. When students walk by a classroom during a teacher's planning period and see what appears to be a relaxed teacher, all tend to criticize and complain that our papers are going ungraded. If a closer look were taken all might find that in actuality the teacher is simply taking a break from grading a paper. Even if this free time is spent relaxing, no less respect should be given to a teacher because they are our key to the future. Without them there is no future.

Leaving a Space

As the 90s decade settled in, a departure was in making. One person who clearly devoted her every thought and moment to teaching decided to retire after completing the 1990-1991 academic year. Not only did she enjoy educating but this lady knew how to teach.

Mrs. Linda Harris instilled superior business qualities into the minds of those she penetrated. She taught her students to "Type" and "Introduced" them to business, and she also promoted and encouraged Future Business Leaders of America.

Mrs. Harris always carried a smile into the halls of Castlewood High. She tried to make school as entertaining as possible. She accommodated the FBLA members with field trips and always accompanied the students, inspiring them to have fun.

Mrs. Harris has always been a friend to everyone. Evidently, she decided to end her teaching career but not her affection and neighborliness toward her C.H.S. family. In words of this admirable lady, "Semi, semi, semi, space, semi, semi, semi, space."

Enter At Your Own Risk

Unlike previous yearbooks, the Castletonian staff has decided to dedicate the most justified spread of this publication to the adviser. No one but staffers can contemplate the difficulty of this creation.

Each year a new squadron comes in, with little experience but lots of energy. Nevertheless, one dynamic woman pulls another winning volume out of her hat. Those sequential lectures and stern voice are scary but joked about between classes. Nerves of steel keep this lady from bugging out when the deadlines roll in. For the feisty yet constantly nagging "Ojann", it takes a certain kind of cool to maintain when she has her deadline spasms. Only the "Fax" Please

The Castlewood FBLA chapter has accomplished a great deal this year. The officers are: President, Susan Hicks; Vice-President Callie Harrill; Secretary, Becky Sands; Reporter, Laura Wolfe; Treasurer, Trish Sexton. This group with the help of Mr. Huff and the other dedicated members have gotten together and gone to competitions, conferences, fund raisers, and social activities. This chapter has participated in the Fall Regional Conference, where Castlewood came out top in the Battle of the Regions, Russell County Business Contest, Regional Spring Conference, Southwest Conference, and the State Leadership Conference. In all these meetings, the Castlewood continues to excel.

Being in the SCA gives members an opportunity to have a hand in running many of the activities that take place in the course of a school year. From homecoming to dances to White Christmas to assemblies, the SCA members get a chance to help in all of the many fundraisers that can be seen throughout the year. The leaders of the SCA, the President, Vice-President, and Secretary, have a number of responsibilities. The President heads all of the events with a lot of help from the sponsors; the Vice-President leads the school in the Pledge of Allegiance every morning; and the Secretary gets the job of typing and organizing the programs and such. Indeed the SCA is the foundation on which the school is built, and all of the members should be honored to be a part of it.

Diction, emotion, and talent all these were qualities necessary to be in forensics. The 1992 forensics team made a very impressive showing in districts, regionals, and even state finals.

Josh Miotke was able to capture a solid third in state. First place in districts and second in regionals was achieved by Michelle Bush. Kendell Ring capitalized on a first place regional title. Other members of the team who made strong showings in districts, these are: Shannon Duncan, Scott Jessee, Becky Wallace, and Lena Taylor.

Hard work and dedication were the keys that unlocked the doors of success for the 1992 Forensics team. Each day brought about a revelation of some new found talent. Weaving that talent and dedication, gave the team memories worthy of being honored.

Watch for Falling Notes

"Parade Rest!" is the call that always signals the start of something spectacular. Then comes the ever familiar "Attention!", followed by the thunderous "One..Two" screamed with enthusiasm and pride from every member of the Big Blue Marching Band. With this sequence completed, the band is then ready to display their many talents for all to see.

With the loud, blasting glare of the trumpets, the halftime show begins. Almost like a band of wild Indians, the band enters the field playing "Cheyenne". The thunder of the mighty drum corps signals the start of the percussion feature known as "Tale Spin Theme". With the playing of "Born to Boogie", the C.H.S. tuba section is allowed to boogie down. Finally with the last selection, "With You I'm Born Again" the woodwinds are featured. All in all every section of the band was featured in this year's field show. This added variety and contrast to the band.

Much pride and determination goes into each show given by the band. This group begins practice in late July or early August every year just to insure that the show is near perfection by the first ballgame. The hard work and sweat pays off with each person's smiling face at the applause of the crowd, not to mention the Division I, superior ratings that the band receives in competition.

The one thing that separates this group from all others is the people involved. With the departure of Mr. Brown, the members were able to hold things together throughout the reconstruction. The band is more than just a class or even a friendship; it is like a family.

Building toward the future requires a solid foundation. The cornerstone on which success is built are achievement, character, leadership, and academic excellence. The students who are eligible to join the Beta Club have demonstrated all of these qualities. The elite members were recognized before the faculty and student body in a special induction ceremony. The eight new members received the Torch of Knowledge from the eleven Senior members to reward them for their hard work and accomplishments. These distinguished club members have maintained a 3.5 grade point average and deserve the honor and prestige they receive. As they mold the framework of their futures, they will continue to promote academic excellence among themselves and hopefully encourage other students to strive for success in reaching the top.

Too Smart Too Handle

The 1992 edition of the CHS academic team was definitely under construction this year. They were under the leadership of two new coaches and had only one veteran player. Despite these circumstances they worked hard and in the end achieved their goals. Even though they did not receive first place, they proved to everyone that they're still number one. They took their losses and learned from them and formed a team that will be hard to stop in the upcoming year.

Quiet — Studying Zone

After the summer was over, it was back to work as usual. But it was not all work and no play. Looking at the students sitting in the desks recalls memories of a normal day here at Castlewood High School. Paper rattling, chalk screeching across the blackboard, and desks moving across the floors are some of the more typical sounds that are heard in the classrooms each day. However, the most distracting sounds heard are the noisy sounds of the maintenance men repairing the furnaces. The busy teachers were also distracted with these sounds. They tried to start the year off with a bang, but it was somewhat difficult with all of the noise. After the furnaces were fixed and the noise was gone, everything was back to normal. In spite of it all the students were still able to keep their high academic standard at C.H.S. with the help of the teachers.

Many Miles to the Next Field Trip

This year at C.H.S. has been filled with field trips. Trips to the Barter Theatre and Bays Mountain Park and Planetarium are just a few. Field trips broaden the students' minds and make the subject much more interesting. (Not only that it also gets them out of class!) This also allows the students and teachers to grow closer together and create memories that will last. Field trips add fun and excitement to an otherwise typical school year.

“Work, Work, Work.” The athletes at C.H.S. can relate to this. These young men and women spend approximately ten hours a day on the property of Castlewood High School. They strive for good grades as well as to excel in their sports. After a long day of looking at teachers and learning, they spend the rest of their evening looking at coaches and sweating.

When all is said and done, these young men and women pull together as a team. They battle to demolish their opponent and capture a victory. Nothing can beat the feeling of superiority over one's adversary. So the athletes at C.H.S. can also relate to “Fun, Fun, Fun.”

As the start of the 1991 football season came near, Castlewood was expected to have another losing season and end up at the bottom of the Hogoheegee District. However, someone forgot to tell the coaches and players, and they wound up with an impressive first game win. After that they never looked back. Finally, after five consecutive victories, CHS students, fans, and other schools began to realize that this team was for real. They earned the respect they deserved and gained tremendous support from the enthusiastic Devil fans with an 8-2 regular season record.

The season came to an end with a loss to Parry McClure in the regional playoffs. Although unable to advance further after this loss, it is evident that they deserve to be mentioned as one of the top teams for the 1991 season. Congratulations to Coach Kiser, assistant coaches, senior members, and other players who provided Castlewood with an exciting and unforgettable season.

Marsha McReynolds

"The success of the 1991 Blue Devil Football Team can be attributed directly to the hard work of our assistant coaches, the leadership of our seniors and the team's unselfish dedication to be the best for the team and not for the individual."

WOMEN AT WORK!!!

Last season Coach John Sabo took over as head coach of the girls' basketball team. Coach Sabo and his Lady Devils worked tremendously hard at achieving a winning record. The Lady Devils, having an exceptional shooting team, averaged 46 points per game. Their top shooters were Buffie Dorton, who placed fifth in the league with a scoring average of 15.1, and Marsha McReynolds, who finished seventh with a 12.2 scoring average.

Although they were only expected to win a few games, they proved that hard work and determination can make an incredible difference. With a district record of 7-8 and an overall record of 9-11, the Lady Devils surprised their fans and opponents by conquering obstacles that could have prevented their success on the court. Their cooperation with one another also assisted.

Even though the Lady Devils will be losing three seniors, they will be returning with some experienced starters along with a talented group of underclassmen. Next year the Lady Devils' pre-season will pick up where they left off, working to achieve their goals.

Heather Jordan

"My eight girls gave much time to hard work, dedication, and bonding closely together. They brought a family atmosphere to the program which created success. I could not be any prouder of a group of girls that gave me respect on and off the court. Thanks for a wonderful season girls!"

DANGER: HIGH VOLTAGE PINS

The 1992 wrestling team was a young team with a prestigious name to uphold. This group of young men has worked hard to achieve a winning season. For the wrestling team, this achievement is somewhat of a tradition here at C.H.S. Over the past year, C.H.S. has had numerous state champions and runners-up.

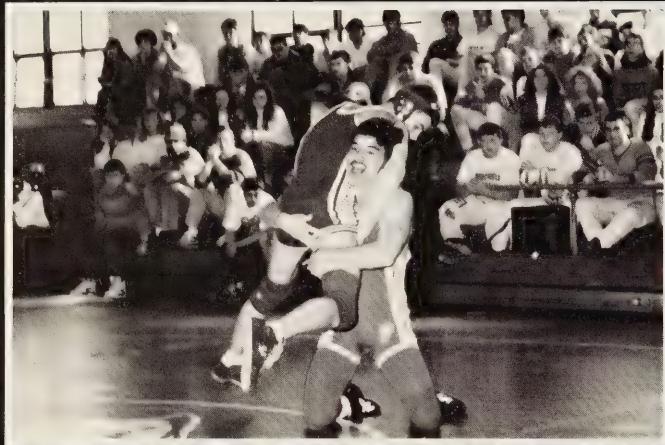

Coach Darrell Taylor has kept this tradition in full force with an honorable record. With this novice team, five people qualified for the state tournament. Tony Porter, Jason Alderson, Shawn Kiser, Kevin Saylers, and Todd Glover all received the honor of participating in the tournament. Out of these five, two of them placed in state: Jason Alderson — 3rd, Shawn Kiser — 5th.

In a young team such as this, the ambition to win is one that will achieve their goals. Coach Taylor has this team ready to deliver victories in the future. Congratulations to the mighty Devil wrestlers and may their dreams remain high.

Digging in Progress!

5, 2, 1 — Contact. Tabitha Osborne soars to pound the ball into the ground.

The '92 volleyball team had an enjoyable season. Although they were defeated in the regional tournament, they were runner-up in both District and the District Tournament. Nikki Austin and Carey Morgan were the only Lady Devils to place on the All-District team; however, one cannot say enough about the rest of the team.

The Lady Devils' starting line-up consisted of six seniors: Marsha McReynolds, Nikki Austin, Heather Jordan, Carey Morgan, Jill Whitaker, and Tabitha Osborne. Although their season is over, these six Lady Devils have left an unforgettable mark at Castlewood High School. These girls will definitely be missed, but there is some upcoming talent to fill their positions.

HOOPS AHEAD

As coach Randy Poole and the Blue Devil basketball team began practice in mid-November for the 1991-92 season, they knew it would be a tough year. However, talent and determination triumphed over their youth and inexperience as they finished with several victories and were competitive in the district.

Tracy Hall, Steve Franklin, and Steve Arney provided the Devil leadership as they enjoyed their senior season. O.J. Williams provided most of the Devil offense as he led Southwest Virginia in scoring average. His fellow juniors, Scott Smith, Brian Townes, and Skipper Proffitt contributed on both of fense and defense. Travis "Mookie" Yates and Marty Halloway gained a valuable year of experience as they will be key players in the next few years.

At the start of the 1992 season, the girls' softball team was once again faced with high expectations. With six returning starters and a lot of young talent, they were ranked third in the state. As the season began and progressed, the Lady Devils proved that they were everything that everyone hoped they would be.

The Mighty Blue finished the regular season with an 11-3 record with all three losses being by only one run. The Lady Devils then journeyed to Salem to face James River in the regional tournament. They played well but were defeated in a heartbreaker 6-5, ending the 1992 season. Despite losing five seniors, Coach Sabo should have a top team next season with a solid block of returning talent.

HEADS UP

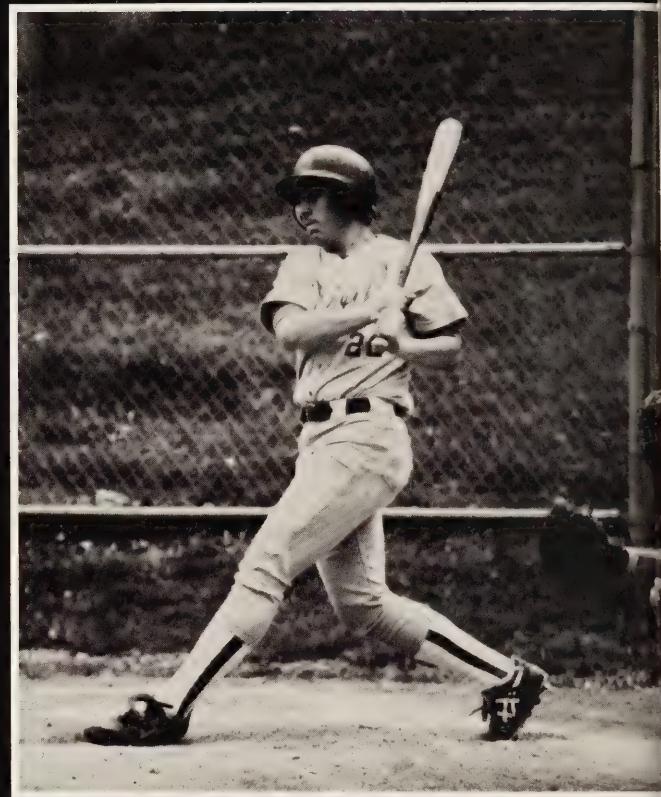

Take me out to the ballgame ... people of all ages came out this year to watch the Big Blue baseball team. The old gathered on the hill with their lawn chairs as the young ran down the foul balls. Baseball is a tradition that captivates the fans and this tradition has prevailed at Castlewood for many years.

Although baseball may seem quite commonplace to some, the CHS men know how to keep the crowds happy when they hit a ball with a stick. The 1992 Blue Devils had an excellent season this year, with a record of 13-5. These young men gave their time and their hearts to make a winning season.

Although one may often forget, there is a great amount of time and hard work put into having a successful track team. Even though some may think running is the only event in track, there is also the high jump, long jump, shot put, and discus throw. The members of the track team must strive to get in shape for their "big meets."

The CHS '92 boys' track team did fairly well overall. Although they may be looking forward to next season, the team will be minus nine graduating seniors and will be counting on its younger athletes for a successful year.

BLASTING AREA

If you feel like cheering, all you have to do is to look around for the smiling faces of the C.H.S. cheerleaders. During games they are found on the sidelines, cheering on that devil team. At pep rallies they are found on the court in the gym cheering on the whole school.

During the past football season these dedicated girls had many tasks to do such as holding pep rallies, putting posters around school, and helping with homecoming activities. The girls were behind their team all the way. They went to Faxon McClure to see their team play in the first round of the Division C playoffs. Football cheerleaders were Seniors Becky Sando, Robin Ring, Susan Hicks, and Callie Harrill; Junior Bethanie Bratton, and Sophomores Jan Dickenson and Stephanie Boyd.

In basketball season these girls cheered the team on every occasion — sometimes two or three times a week. During homecoming the cheerleaders threw the players a party to wish them good luck and bought them a big cookie. GOING THE DISTANCE

The 1992 girls' track team consisted of budding athletes as well as veterans of the sport. These girls gained much experience in their meets to cap the season with a lead on next year. With the loss of only one senior, Carey Morgan, they plan to be ready for any competition in the future. Buffie Dorton excelled in her events, and she advanced to state in two different events. Coach Allen and his team look forward to a promising next season.

WHAT DREAMS ARE MADE OF

Do you ever wonder what Michael Jordan daydreamed about in science class? Or what Jose Canseco wanted to be as he was growing up? Chances are that when they were our age, they also hated research papers, cafeteria food, and becoming an athletic superstar was only a dream.

The many athletes here at CHS put in very long hours and hard work. This same determination is what made "pros" out of the athletic superstars of today. So the next time you catch yourself humming "Be like Mike" or you dream that you are soaring through the air for a dunk, think of it as a possibility. And remember, even Michael and Jose were cut from their varsity teams. There are always pleasant surprises out there.

Marsha McReynolds

VICTORY BUILD-UP

The Morning Parade

The tradition of parading down the halls of C.H.S. every morning originated in August of 1950. That was the first year that the might Devils had the opportunity to attend this school. From that day on, the students began to waltz down these halls in order to pass time.

For the past few years the students have been gradually losing interest in this peppy parade every morning. At first, the students were hyped up and willing to walk up and down the halls. Lately the teens have been "stricken with old age" and are no longer willing to attempt this tiring task. Some students say, "It's just to early to walk" or "I'm too sleepy to put my body through that much exercise." Instead of roaming the halls, many students stand at their lockers gossiping, laughing, and admiring the brave souls who get their morning exercise.

Even though this forty-two year tradition may be slacking off a bit, the students will never completely bring it to a halt. So, come on daring Devils, let's get tough and always remember to STRUT YOUR STUFF!

Laura Wolfe

Get a little closer . . . Lori Sandler and Jessica Holbrook are so involved in their conversation that Kelvin Coleman goes unnoticed.

Did you hear . . . Shelia Meade uses the free time in the morning to share gossip with Amy Wright and Misti Evans as Gina Turner follows along.

Say what? . . . Craig Mullis leans in to hear what Chris James is saying over the din of morning conversations.

The Long and Short Of It

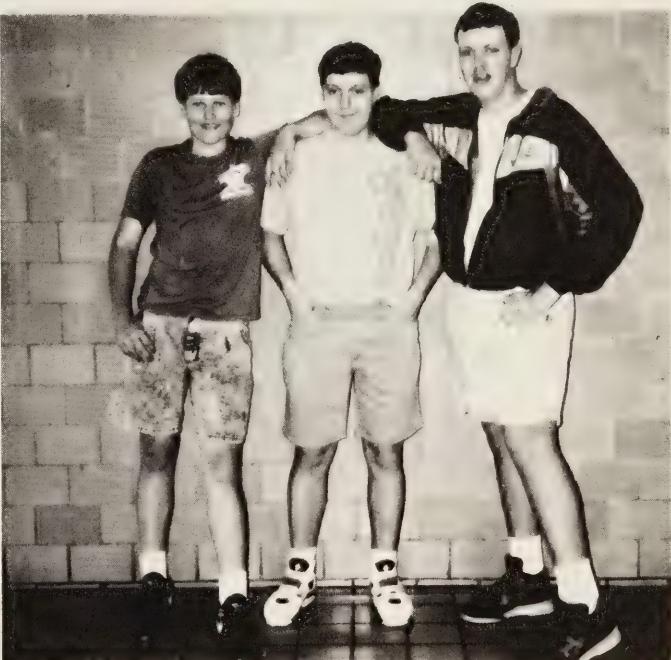

Oh, lala... Nikki Thomas hopes she's posing for Vogue but she's ending up in the yearbook.

Starting as early as February, you can see almost everyone here at C.H.S. putting on their shorts and trying to get summer here as soon as possible. If one day is colder than another, you may see everyone is wearing sweatshirts with their shorts. No matter what else you wear with them, shorts seem to be the most popular item of clothing anytime of the year. There is one problem with wearing shorts to school, and it is not the cold you might catch from wearing them in the winter — it is whether or not they are long enough. Some people wear short shorts and if too many people started doing this, then our privilege of wearing shorts to school would be taken away. But how short is too short? We think of too short as being indecent. Is one to three inches above the knee or a little shorter acceptable? Like the old saying goes, "Opinions are like elbows — everyone has one."

Kim Mullins

New York, here we come... Debbie Meade, Beth Bratton, Diana Dickenson, and Stephanie Boyd are getting ready to audition for the Rockettes.

Aren't we tough stuff... Denney Wagner, Brad Morefield, and Barry Ruff think they're something while posing for the camera.

Three's a crowd... Not for Coach Allen — he enjoys being surrounded by Mary Vajda, Marsha McReynolds, Heather Jordan, and Carey Morgan.

This portion of one yearbook fits the theme better than any other because it stays "under construction" constantly. From designing the ads to tracing through on quad packs, construction of the ads section is a long and tedious job. If it were not for area merchants the book that we use to remember the prior year would not be.

We dedicate this section to our sponsors in Castlewood, Lebanon, Coeburn, Wise, Norton, and Abington. We extend our gratitude and thanks to you for purchasing our advertisements. Again, thank you from the 1992 yearbook staff.

Heather Skeens
Billy Woods

Ride 'em cowboy...Billy Woods gives Kevin Johnson a piggy-back ride.

Un momento, Senora...David Jesse puts his thoughts into foreign language.

Feed me...Andrea Meade gets her wish by a mysterious hand.

Oh, That Year???

Pictures used are borrowed from Entertainment Weekly magazine.

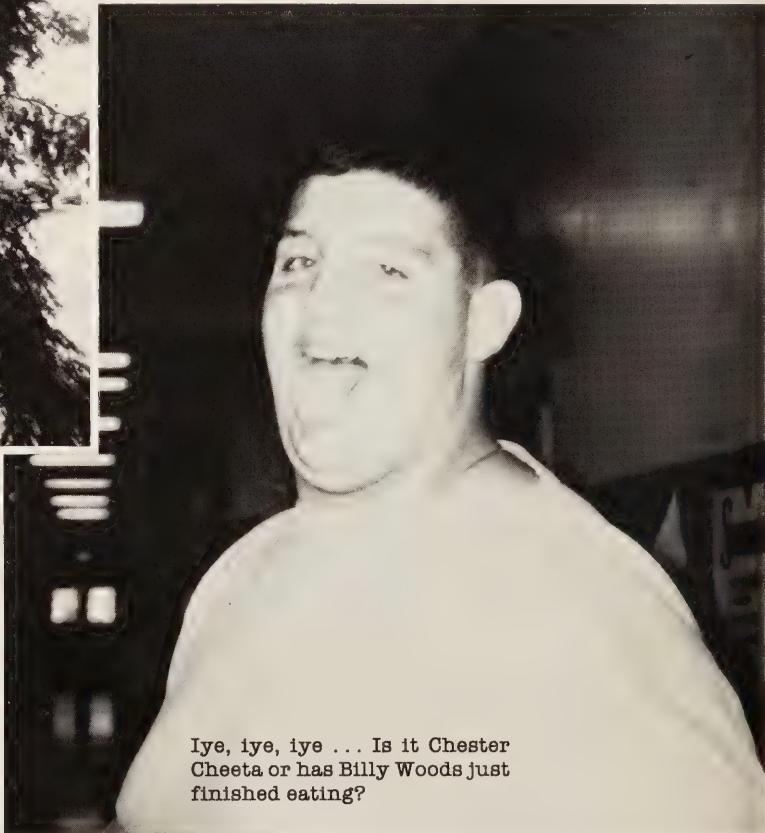

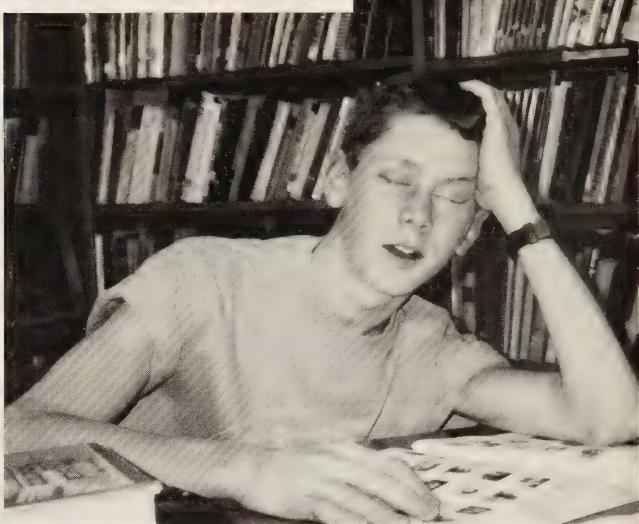

Shameless

Just a swingin' ... Jared Morgan demonstrates his ability to "hang on for dear life."

Babe alert ... Shawn Kiser, Todd Glover, and Kevin Salyer scope out the pick of the crop at a social event.

Hush, little baby, don't say a word... Bobby Hall has not said a word for quite a while from the sound of sawing logs.

Iye, iye, iye ... Is it Chester Cheetah or has Billy Woods just finished eating?

Catch me I'm falling ... Jim Grizzle, Willie Monk, Shane White, Anthony Woods are always hanging around.

Hair number 842 is out of place ... April Robinson shoots another squirt of spritz for a little extra security.

Y E E E K ... Coach Poole demonstrates how angry he becomes when his classes are interrupted.

Senior class motto? ... This seems to be what most '92 Seniors think.

The most useful part of the human body? ... Missy Boyd keeps from shoving her foot in her mouth by sticking out her tongue.

Sweet Child Of Mine

Nikki,

Hope you continue to strive to succeed for that which makes your life complete.

Love you,
Mom and Dad

Callie,

I wish you luck, courage, and wisdom, but most of all, I wish you happiness. I'm very proud of you.

I love you,
Mom

Leslie,

Congratulations! You did it! Now move forward and face life head on. Carpe Diem!

We love you,
Dad, Mom, and Susan

Heather(J.),

Not only are you a great daughter, you're my best friend. I want only the best for you.

Love,
Mom

Farewell

Andrea,

We hope that CHS will always hold fond memories for you just like it always has for your mom.

Love,

Mom and Dad

Eric,

As you begin your new journey, may you choose a path that will bring you happiness, success, and spiritual fulfillment.

We love you, Mom and Dad

Bobbi,

I'm so proud of you. You're a kind, beautiful, and loving person and for that I love you so.

Mom

Christy,

There are many paths on life's highways. It's up to you to choose the right one, but we'll always be here for you on every path.

That's

Along with poodle skirts, the year 1992 has now passed. We will remember a time when algebra and driving lessons were impossibilities for us. We are and will be UNDER CONSTRUCTION whether we are 9 or 99.

The memoirs from our high school days will be preserved safely within the pages of this book. The plot is uncovered and the chapter has ceased, but a new one will begin. Our lives are always building.

Callie Harrill

What ballgame? . . . CHS fans show their support at a home basketball game.

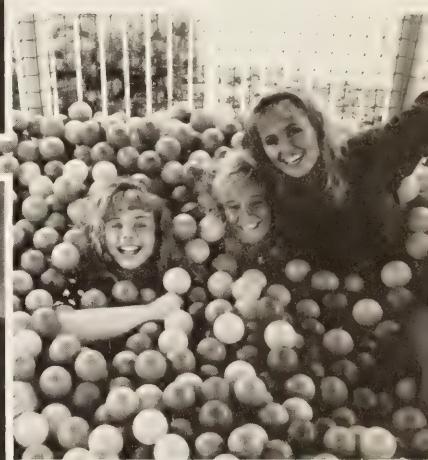

We want water . . . Barry Johnson and Steve Arney contemplate whether to ask Steve Franklin to get off the water cooler.

I demand an explanation! . . . Mr. Banner doesn't find the loose lid on the ketchup container amusing at all.

All Folks!

I'm saving them for dinner . . .
Tim Collins demonstrates his need for an afternoon snack.

And your name is . . . Steven Sproles gives "the eye" to the girl behind him.

No applause please . . . Kim Mullins and Millicent Jesse are oh-so modest.

I've fallen and I can't get up . . . Carey Morgan, Heather Skeens, Becky Sands, and Calie Harrill enliven their lunch break on courthouse field day.

You want this French fry? . . .
Mrs. Johnson shows her more generous side.
